A woman was injured as a landmine exploded in southwestern Pakistan's Baluchistan province on Sunday, according to a report by private Geo Television.

(11.03.2007)

The explosion occurred as a bullock cart hit into a landmine planted by unidentified persons in Dera Bugti, some 220 km southeast of Quetta, the provincial capital, said the report.

A woman riding the cart was wounded in the blast and she has been admitted into a local hospital.

It is not clear who is behind the incident.

A tribal elder was killed and 16 people were injured when a bomb planted on a motorbike exploded in the Sui bazaar of Dera Bugti district on March 7.
